The tobacco crop of B. Harnin, of Breckinridge county, will make 8,000 pounds to the acre.

BLACKBURN and Owens are billed to speak here on Sept. 4th, the court-day preceding our fair.

ROBERTSON COUNTY instructed for K. F. Pritchard for Congress, last Saturday. Col. J. Smith Hurt was second choice.

THERE is a good deal of sympathy wasted on men who have no more sense than to point loaded pistols at their sisters and wives.

THE British Government has ordered 20,000 pairs of blue spectacles for the use of troops in Egypt. The Egyptians will furnish them with blue frames and other little conveniences of war.

THE bite of a spider killed a Texas editor recently. Any editor who would so far forget the laws governing health, ought to die for allowing the whisky to die out of his system.

A TRAMP printer got caught out in a big rain storm near here yesterday and came near being drowned. He is consoled, from the fact, however, that he will not have to take a bath next summer.

REV. MR. BARNES, the mountain evangelist, is exerting his eloquence at Indianapolis. It is almost a hopeless task, however, to preach to a people when they are wrapped up in State politics.

ABOUT the cheapest and quickest way in which to roust Aribi Bey and his flock of Bedouins out of the intrenchments, would be for the English to back a regiment of mules up to the earthworks and kick 'em out.

THE harvest is past, and the summer is about ready to rear up on its hind legs and fall back and break its neck, and we are not paid. How oft would we have received and hovered your two dollars, and ye would not?

MRS. LINCOLN, widow of Abraham Lincoln, had $75,000 worth of United States bonds at the time of her death. She had more money than she could use, and yet $5,000 was taken from the United States Treasury, not long since to add to her wealth—until she could die and leave it to her son.

WHEN an Indian chief died in Chicago the other day his companions daubed their faces with lampblack as a token of sorrow. If lampblack were used as the emblem of mourning with the white race and were put on in proportion to the grief, there would be pretty thin painting in some cases.

WENRY WATTEKSON has written a book entitled "Wit and Humor of the South." It will no doubt be a smaller calamity than the late war, but will throw things out of business whack for a season, providing there are few copies sold in the vicinity of Reelfoot Lake, and the convulsions of 1812 be renewed.

GEN. SANGER, the editor of the Key West Democrat, is twenty years old, and weighs thirty-five pounds, and is forty inches high. When a man comes in to "see who wrote that article," the editor crawls under a printer's towel (which is worse than taking a clubbing) and remains quiet until the big man of wrath has gone out.

At the Rockcastle Springs, in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky, a fish weighing fifty-seven pounds, has been caught by a man from the "settlement." What a child-like simplicity this rural fish story of a dollar-a-day resort has, when compared with those fifty-foot sea-serpents of the seven-dollars-a-day resorts on the Atlantic coast?

A BURLY colored man of this place took a drink of whiskey and a short walk, and died Sunday. Now the question arises among the moralists, was it the drinking or walking on Sunday that killed him. In consultation with an eminent county official who has the discriminating powers of putting a single hair on the right side of Justice's scales, he gives it as his opinion that a man ought never to walk after drinking. He had frequently taken drinks, but had always made it a rule to never walk.

We are in daily receipt of infamous, highway robbery propositions from Newspaper Advertising Agencies and Patent Medicine men, to advertise at one quarter rates and pay cash for a cargo of double-distilled death and patent curry combs and such like. The BOURBON NEWS hereby informs all such thieves that it wants no more propositions in the future, from any advertising agencies or any other sort of thieves. All honest and high-minded papers in the Union, please copy.

PROCTOR KNOTT is now an announced candidate for Governor. Jones will be his most formidable opponent, while Judge Owsley lurks in the bushes of Eastern Kentucky, and can throw the game just as he chooses.

Blackburn-Owens Speaking.

THE Lexington correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer, says of the speaking at Athens:

"Messrs. Blackburn and Owens, rival candidates for the Democratic nomination for Congress in this district, spoke at Athens, in this county, to-day. Owens, who had the opening speech, dropped all the personalities in which he indulged yesterday, and which called from Captain Blackburn an unequalled piece of invective. He also dropped the pretension that he was not responsible for the act of gerrymandering the district and excluding three of Mr. Blackburn's strongest counties, Jessamine, Clark and Shelby, and adding three in which Blackburn was almost a stranger. Yesterday he pretended that the work was done by Chairman Offut, who, he said, was a friend of Mr. Blackburn, but who, he was afterward obliged to admit, was supporting Owens for Congress against Blackburn. To-day he cast aside all disguise, and boldly admitted that he drew the bill himself, and that he did it in order to prevent the adoption of another which would have so averaged the district as to have reduced its Democratic majority. Mr. Owens evidently discovered, after yesterday's experience, that he had blundered in his methods of attack. Mr. Blackburn treated the whole matter good naturedly, and, as Owens was not personal, let him off easy. Mr. Blackburn does not underestimate his antagonist, but it is evident that he does not regard him as quite worthy of his steel. The joint debate can not fail to insure Captain Blackburn's success.

THE Lexington Press thus speaks of Monday's speeches:

The contest between the Honorable Blackburn and Owens in our Court House yesterday was, perhaps, one of the most brilliant pieces of repartee that has been heard here since the days of Roger Hanson and Tom Marshall. Mr. Blackburn's first speech was a simple statistical recital of his career in Congress, and through it very elegantly asked again the suffrage of his constituency. Mr. Owens arose for a speech of an hour, and to everything that handsome personal appearance and modest deportment could do for him, added from the very first sentence an eloquence that took the house by storm, and did look like he was going to play David to our Goliath of Gath. He pelted Mr. Blackburn with history and art, poetry, metaphor, irony and regular forked lightning sarcasm, and you could smell sulphur like somebody had struck a match, when he rounded a period in one of his philippics. He read Mr. Blackburn's letter, published in the Lexington papers a few weeks since, asking the people to stay judgment until he could get home, and the ingenious plays he made upon it were—ingenious. Mr. Blackburn then arose for a speech of fifteen minutes, and we here state that no man fully understands the import of what is meant by "making the fur fly" who did not hear that speech. It was not only a refutation: he piled Pelion on Ossa, and Mr. Owens, with all his fire, was but another lamed blacksmith that a Jupiter had piled a mountain on.

Eld. R. B. Garret, of the Baptist church, was the officiating minister.

Joe N. Vimont has arrived here, whilst returning from New York, where he has been laboring for a mining syndicate. He has orders to make a trip to the mountains of Eastern Kentucky to examine some coal lands, and will from thence proceed to New Mexico. Prior to his visit to New York, he rode 500 miles on horseback through the mountains of Colorado and the Territories, and is always on the wing. He reports his brother Henry admirably located as a grocery clerk at $125 per month salary, and Tom in charge of the Big Pittsburg mine, which, for the present, is a non-paying institution—therefore "Bundy" is not so happy as "Paddy."

On Tuesday evening Conductor Johnnie Martin's engineer got off his base a little from some unaccountable cause, when ordered to take the side track in order to let Conductor Smiley's freight pass, and put on a little too much steam for a down-grade run, and run into Smiley's bull-catcher and knocked off some of the ornamental lattice work of each engine. Conductor Martin was called into the general office, and as it was clearly shown that he was individually not to blame, he was exonerated and put to work again. His engineer and brakeman were also ordered on duty again. Conductor Martin being one of the most careful employees on the road, was sorely troubled over the matter, and his friends are glad to hear that no possible blame could be placed on his shoulders.

THE LOUISVILLE Weekly COMMERCIAL.

THE LOUISVILLE COMMERCIAL, with daily and weekly editions, for years past recognized as a leading paper of the South and West, was established in 1827 by a number of Kentuckians for the purpose of disseminating those principles of individual liberty, civil equality, public honesty, and devotion to nationality and the supremacy of the National Constitution on which they believed the welfare of the whole country to depend, and which they felt it especially important that the people of Kentucky and the Southern States should cordially accept and act upon. The paper has steadfastly advocated and defended those principles during its whole career, and still devotes itself to their maintenance. It is a special friend to the development and prosperity of the South on that foundation of justice to all, which is the only sure basis of permanent tranquility and happiness.

THE WEEKLY COMMERCIAL is a large, thirty-six column paper, giving every week a continued novel and one or more completed stories, selections of the highest literary character and of the most general interest; full and accurate market reports, a complete resume of the latest news, and well-written editorials on current topics. It is well known as one of the brightest and most valuable family papers in this country, and from its full Kentucky news is especially interesting to Kentuckians having their homes in other States. We have a clubbing arrangement with the paper in which this advertisement appears, by which subscribers can get two papers for little more than the price of one. ## COL. L. T. FOSTER.

YOUNGSTOWN, OHIO, MAY 10TH, 1880.
 B. J. KENDALL & Co., Gents:—I had a very valuable Hambletonian colt which I prized very highly; he had a large bone spavin on one joint and a small one on the other, which made him very lame; I had him under the charge of two veterinary surgeons who failed to cure him. I was one day reading the advertisement of Kendall's Spavin Cure in the Chicago Express, I determined at once to try it, and got our druggists here to send for it; they ordered three bottles, I took them all and thought I would give it a thorough trial, and used according to directions and the fourth day the colt ceased to be lame, and the lumps had disappeared. I used but one bottle and the colts limbs are as free from lumps and as smooth as any horse in the state. He is entirely cured. The cure was so remarkable that I let two of my neighbors have the remaining two bottles who are now using it. Very Respectfully,
 L. T. FOSTER.

Send for Illustrated Circular which gives positive proof of its virtues. No remedy ever met with such success to our knowledge, for best as well as man.

Price $1. per bottle or six bottles for $5. All druggists have it or can get it for you, or it will be sent to any address on receipt of price, by the proprietors, B. J. Kendall & Co., Enosburgh Falls, Vt.

This book, during the short time since its original publication, has been recognized as one of the most reliable authorities on anything pertaining to the horse's condition or treatment. The best evidence of its popularity is the immense sale which it has met with, over 650,000 have been published and sold in all parts of the northern states. Hundreds of testimonials to the efficacy of the treatment advised can be shown, and in many cases a reference to this book and prompt following of its advises has saved the lives of valuable animals. It is plain and simple in its terms, and can be understood by anybody. A distinguished veterinary surgeon, who possesses a library comprising the most costly books on the horse, recently said that he would part with almost any of them rather than with this treatise, which comprises so much.
